Description

Vyzhnyany. St. Mykolai Church (Church of St. Nicholas)

There is an extremely beautiful yet severely damaged building of St. Mykholai Church located in the village of Vyzhnyany, which is 40 km east from Lviv on the former very busy Glynyansky tract.

Founded in 1400, it was robbed twice and burned in the XVII century by Tatars, and each subsequent reconstruction and multiple restoration, as well as completion and expansion for the needs of the community created a special combination of different styles both in appearance and in the interior.

In the period between wars, the Church was rebuilt according to the project of Bronislaw Victor. The interiors were painted by Stanislaw Teisair, Roman and Margit Selsky. The statue of St. Joseph on the façade is made by Marian Vnuk.

The real desolation for the architectural monument came with the arrival of the Soviet authorities, who used it as warehouses for products and chemicals. Only thanks to the private funds from Poland and the enthusiasm of residents, was it possible to stop the destruction and begin the restoration of the building.
